

JEREMY LEVINE

47 Huron Avenue
Wayne, New Jersey 07470
973.330.1713
jeremylevine85@gmail.com
jeremylouislevine.com

CURRICULUM VITAE

EDUCATION

Stony Brook University, Stony Brook, New York
PhD in Sociology in Sociology (Expected in 2027)

William Paterson University, Wayne, New Jersey
M.A. in Public Policy in International Affairs (2016)

Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison, New Jersey
B.S. in Finance (2014)

WORKING EXPERIENCE:

Stony Brook University (August 2022 to Present)

Sociology Department: Awarded a Teaching Assistant position as part of my funding package to pursue a PhD in Sociology.

NYU (October 2019 to Present)

School of Professional Studies: Adjunct Lecturer teaching the following courses designed by me as part of the Center for Applied Liberal Arts:

- From Russia with Love? The Mueller Investigation and the Transformation of American Politics
- The Syrian Civil War and Cold War Politics in the 21st Century
- From Peter to Putin: The Evolution of the Kremlin and Russia's Place in the World from Empire to the 21st Century
- Traveling the Silk Road: The Evolution of China and What It Means for the United States
- Cold War in the Middle East: Saudi Arabia and Iran
- Central Europe 1848-1948: From Empires and Revolutions to the Dawn of the Cold War

The College of New Jersey (August 2019 to December 2021)

Economics Department: Adjunct Professor teaching Money, Credit & Financial Markets, Principles of Microeconomics, Principles of Macroeconomics, Intermediate Macroeconomics, and Multinational Firms as part of the TCNJ School of Business.

Pace University (August 2019 to Present)

Sociology Department: Adjunct Professor teaching Work and Leisure, Introduction to Sociology, and Sociology through Film as part of the Dyson College of Arts and Sciences.

Finance Department: Adjunct Professor teaching International Corporate Finance and Managerial Economics for Decision Making for the MBA program; Risk Management, Principles of Investments, and Options, Futures and Swaps for undergraduate business students as part of the Lubin School of Business.

Marymount Manhattan College (August 2019 to June 2022)

Business Department: Adjunct Professor teaching Money, Banking and Financial Markets, Business and Society, Organizational Behavior, Legal Environment of Business, Business Law II, The Contemporary Workplace, and Principles of Microeconomics for undergraduate business students.

Princeton University (Summer 2019)

W.E.B. Scholars Institute: Lecturer teaching Mathematical Logic for the Junior Achievers Academy and Mathematical Reasoning for the Fellows Academy.

Montclair State University (January 2019 to May 2022)

Sociology Department: Adjunct Professor teaching Statistics for Social Research, Foundations of Sociological Inquiry, Sociological Research Methods I, Sociology of Health and Illness, and Sociology of Rich and Poor Nations as part of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences.

Kean University (January 2018 to August 2019)

Sociology Department: Full-time Lecturer teaching Introduction to Sociology, Social Statistics, Social Movements, Crime and Delinquency, Social Inequality in America, and Methods of Social Research, along with Introduction to Sociology for the EEO/EOF Pre-Freshman Summer Academy; Tasked with revising the course The American Dream: Democracy and Capitalism; Created a new course titled Data Analysis and Management that focuses on Data Management and R Programming.

Curriculum Committee: Appointed to represent the Sociology Department by serving on the Kean University Curriculum Committee for the College of Liberal Arts, which decides which courses will be offered to both undergraduate and graduate students.

Bergen Community College (January 2018 to May 2018)

Adjunct Professor teaching Introduction to Microeconomics and Introduction to Macroeconomics for the Department of Social Sciences.

Fairleigh Dickinson University (August 2017 to December 2020)

School of Public and Global Affairs: Adjunct Professor teaching Quantitative Methods for Administrators as part of the MPA Core Curriculum.

Academic Support Center: Tutor at the Academic Support Center where I instruct and assist both undergraduate and graduate students with their business, statistics, math, and economics courses.

University Core: Adjunct Professor teaching Global Issues as part of the interdisciplinary University Core Curriculum that is recognized by the American Association of Colleges and Universities.

Silberman College of Business: Adjunct Professor teaching Statistical Data Analysis as part of the MBA Core Curriculum and Operations Management as part of the undergraduate Business Core Curriculum.

County College of Morris (January 2017 to May 2018)

Adjunct Professor teaching Principles of Accounting I & II for the County College of Morris Department of Business.

William Paterson University (July 2015 to August 2021)

Sociology Department: Adjunct Professor teaching Principles of Sociology and Social Stratification as part of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences.

Political Science Department: Adjunct Professor teaching Power, Justice, and Freedom as part of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences.

Academic Success Center: Tutor at the Academic Success Center where I instruct and assist both undergraduate and graduate students with their sociology, political science, economics, statistics, math, and business courses.

American Democracy Project: Graduate Assistant for the American Democracy Project; Hosted the annual Constitution Day event where guest speaker Terrell Blount from the New Jersey Scholarship for Transformative Education in Prisons discussed the penal system of the United States with hundreds of students; Promoted the use of TurboVote, which is designed to help people register to vote, request absentee ballots if needed, and keep track of elections for every individual from the local level to the national level; Hosted events on campus that provided students in large numbers the opportunity to register to vote and to learn about the candidates running for office where they live at all levels of government.

Summer Youth Program: Counselor for the summer youth program that is dedicated to helping student achieve a new perspective on their academic abilities and potential, along with offering high school and middle school programs designed to enrich learning and expand imaginations and creativity; Assigned to work with Passaic High School students who are enrolled in SAT Prep courses and college courses designed to give them college credits upon completion.

PEER REVIEWED PUBLICATIONS:

Levine, Jeremy. 2023. "Professional Sports, Authoritarian Capitalism, and Their Impact on the Global Community." The International Journal of Sport and Society 14 (2): 51-67. doi:10.18848/2152-7857/CGP/v14i02/51-67.

Levine, Jeremy. 2023. "The Political Dimensions of Conflict and Globalization: What Russia and China Have Recently Taught Us about the Fallout and Political Ramifications of Globalization." The International Journal of Interdisciplinary Global Studies 18 (2): 17-30. doi:10.18848/2324-755X/CGP/v18i02/17-30

BOOK PUBLICATIONS:

Levine, Jeremy & Jennifer P. Wisdom. (2020). Millennials' & Generation Z Guide to Voting: What No One Ever Told You about the Importance of Voting. Winding Pathway Books:

BOOK CHAPTER PUBLICATIONS:

Levine, Jeremy. 2023. "Commercialization and Economics of Sports: Human Rights Implications." In Globalisation, Human Rights, Sports, and Culture, Book #37. Editors, Yvonne Vissing and Joseph Zajda. Page numbers of chapter, once the book is out. Springer Publishers.

NEWSPAPER PUBLICATIONS:

Levine, Jeremy. (2017, Aug. 6). Reader sounds off: Russians in the Oval Office. USA Today.
<https://www.usatoday.com/story/opinion/2017/08/06/reader-sounds-off-russians-oval-office/537984001/>

CONFERENCE/PROFESSIONAL EVENTS:

On April 28, 2023, I participated in the South Central Renaissance Conference at the University of California, Berkeley and presented "Foundations for the Modern World: The Italian Renaissance Arrives in France."

On February 23, 2023, I participated in the 93rd Annual Meeting of the Eastern Sociological Society and presented "Ukraine: An Identity and Society That is Real and Worth Fighting For."

On November 17, 2022, I participated in the 5th Human Rights, Violence and Dictatorship International Interdisciplinary Conference hosted by InMind Support and presented a working paper titled "Ukraine: One Nation, One People."

On November 11, 2022, I participated in the 17th Annual Conference of AIS-ALBSA "The role of Technology in the Shaping of Sociology" at University Kadri Zeka Gjilan, Kosovo and presented a working paper titled "Fintech and Its Role in Strengthening and Maintaining Democracy"

On February 22, 2002, I was invited by the Energy Club at Stanford University to participate in Stanford Energy Week and give a lecture about the politics both in the United States and abroad that are impacting. Other topics discussed include the current status of the coal and oil industries in the United States, the ties between energy companies and American politicians at the federal and local levels of government, what we can expect when it comes to oil prices both in the short-term and long-term, progress being made by other countries in the development of clean energy sources, such as green and blue hydrogen, and more.

On November 3, 2020, I was invited by the American Democracy Project at William Paterson University to host a virtual Election Night watch party where students were able to follow the results of the Electoral College and ask questions about the democratic process in the United States and the importance of voting and participating in elections.

LECTURES:

On April 27, 2022, I was invited by the Stock Investment Club at the University of San Francisco to give a lecture about the origins of Wall Street and the rise of the financial sector in the United States using JPMorgan Chase as a case study that discussed the establishment of the New York Stock Exchange in 1792, the formation of the Manhattan Company by Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr, loans provided during the Franco-Prussian War and WWI, and the formations of General Electric and U.S. Steel, both of which at one time were part of the Dow Jones Industrial Average. Other topics discussed include the formation of Morgan Stanley and what later became Drexel Burnham Lambert following the passage of Glass-Steagall, the IPO of JPMorgan in 1940, the emergence of international banking and Euromarkets beginning in the 1960s and 1970s, the era of Jamie Dimon during the 2008 Financial Crisis and IPOs of Visa and General Motors, and what role Wall Street and the banking sector will continue to play in society as innovations in electronic banking blockchain technology continues to be adopted.

On April 7, 2022, I was invited by the Ukrainian Cultural Club at the University of Pittsburgh to give a lecture about the Russian invasion of Ukraine and how it reflects Vladimir Putin's vision for Russia's place in the world since the end of the Cold War and his rise to power. Other topics discussed include Ukraine surrendering its nuclear weapons following the collapse of the Soviet Union and signing both the Lisbon Protocol and Non-Proliferation Treaty, the formation of the European Union and NATO and the prospects of Ukraine becoming a member of those organizations, the relationship between Germany and Russia and its impact on the war, the 2014 annexation of Crimea six years after the annexations of South Ossetia and Abkhazia from Georgia, the Russian Orthodox Church supporting the invasion of Ukraine and the religious undertones used by the Kremlin to justify the invasion, the centuries-old history of Russia not acknowledging Ukrainians as a separate and sovereign people, and more.

On April 1, 2022, I was invited by the Harvard Law School Law & Philosophy Society to give a lecture that explores the writings of Niccolò Machiavelli and Thomas Hobbes and explains how Machiavelli bridges the ancient political philosophies to the modern world and revitalizes the discussion of political theory and the role of government that had been minimal in Europe since the fall of Rome until the Renaissance. Other topics discussed include the resurgence of political philosophy during the Renaissance established the foundation for the Enlightenment, the emergence of Thomas Hobbes and how his idea of the sovereign in Leviathan is in some ways an extension of The Prince, the other side of the social contract with people having the right to exit the contract and how that can be applied to both the American Revolution and French Revolution, along with the founding of the United States, Hobbes never calling for there to be an international sovereign or international system of laws to help prevent wars between nations, and how the twenty-first century can be viewed through a Machiavellian or Hobbes lens.

On March 30, 2022, I was invited by the Philosophy Club at the University of Southern California to give a lecture that explores the writings of Niccolò Machiavelli and Thomas Hobbes and explains how Machiavelli bridges the ancient political philosophies to the modern world and revitalizes the discussion of political theory and the role of government that had been minimal in Europe since the fall of Rome until the Renaissance. Other topics discussed include the resurgence of political philosophy during the Renaissance established the foundation for the Enlightenment, the emergence of Thomas Hobbes and how his idea of the sovereign in Leviathan is in some ways an extension of The Prince, the other side of the social contract with people having the right to exit the contract and how that can be applied to both the American Revolution and French Revolution, along with the founding of the United States, Hobbes never calling for there to be an international sovereign or international system of laws to help prevent wars between nations, and how the twenty-first century can be viewed through a Machiavellian or Hobbes lens.

On March 30, 2022, I was invited by the International Affairs Club at The Ohio State University to give a lecture about the geopolitical significance of Central Asia and how countries such as Azerbaijan, Armenia, Kazakhstan, Turkmenistan, and others impact U.S. foreign policy and shape the strategic interests of the United States in the region. Other topics discussed include the end of the Cold War and the lack of democratic political movements that emerged in the region unlike in Eastern Europe, how sanctions against Russia and the declining value of ruble following the invasion of Ukraine negatively impacts Central Asian countries dependent on Russia for trade and remittances, the rivalry between Turkey and Russia shaping conflicts like the ongoing one in Nagorno-Karabakh, and China's expanding influence in the region and the significance of Xinjiang being on the border of Kazakhstan when it comes to energy markets.

On March 24, 2022, I was invited by Trojans for Israel at the University of Southern California to give a lecture about the Mossad from its founding by prime minister David Ben-Gurion to the value of its intelligence gathering leading up to the 1967 Six-Day War and 1973 Yom Kippur War. Other topics discussed include the bureaucratic structure of Israeli intelligence, the relationship between the CIA and Mossad and how it impacts diplomatic relations between the United States and Israel, international assassination campaigns that have targeted those such as Black September following the Munich Massacre and Iranian nuclear scientists, and the capture of Adolf Eichmann from Argentina following the end of WWII and the Holocaust.

On March 23, 2022, I was invited by the Sociological Student Association at Mississippi State University to give a lecture that offered a critique to Max Weber's The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism by arguing the origins and spirit of capitalism first emerged in Medieval and Renaissance Northern Italy with banking industry in cities such as Florence, the invention of credit, and the Medici family bringing to prominence double-entry accounting. Also discussed is how the anti-Semitism of Martin Luther and the idea of predestination found in Calvinism from the Protestant Reformation later led to the spirit and ideological foundation of German fascism rather than capitalism.

On March 21, 2022, I was invited by the International Business Association at Penn State University to give a lecture the rise of the tech industry in China beginning with the special economic zones established by Deng Xiaoping and companies such as Alibaba, Tencent, Huawei, ZTE, China Mobile, and more that have since emerged from those areas. Other topics discussed include the Chinese Communist Party's model of state capitalism, the national security concerns posed by the development of 5G technology by Huawei and apps such as TikTok, the executive orders signed by the Trump Administration that were later rescinded by the Biden Administration, and the latest crackdown on the tech industry being led by Xi Jinping.

On March 8, 2022, I was invited by the Economics Club at the University of Wyoming to give a lecture about the rise of sovereign wealth funds and the evolution of state capitalism since the end of the Cold War. Other topics discussed include the development of the Public Investment Fund in Saudi Arabia, the role of China's sovereign wealth funds when it comes to its Belt and Road Initiative, lack of transparency when it comes to the sovereign wealth funds in countries such as Brunei and Kuwait, and more.

On March 1, 2022, I was invited by the HawkTrade Stock Investment Club at the University of Iowa to give a lecture about the history of Goldman Sachs and how significant it was for the investment bank to go public in 1999. Other topics discussed include the overall implications of the largest commercial and investment banks in the United States being publicly traded and how financial markets have been transformed as a result.

On February 17, 2022, I was invited by the Finance Club at the Duke University Fuqua School of Business to give a lecture about the rise of Tesla and its path to a trillion dollar valuation beginning with the emergence of Elon Musk from South Africa to Silicon Valley and his journey that led to the formation of Tesla and the launch of its IPO. Other topics discussed include the overall challenge of producing electric cars, the importance of maintaining cash flows, whether or not it can maintain its status both in the auto industry and on Wall Street, and more.

On February 15, 2022, I was invited by the Pre-Law Society at Florida State University to give a lecture about the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) that focused on the requirements needed to build such criminal cases, along with its impact on organized crime and how some states have adopted their own version of RICO laws.

On February 9, 2022, I was invited by the Economics Student Union and Duke Investment Club at Duke University to give a lecture about the history of Goldman Sachs and how significant it was for the investment bank to go public in 1999. Other topics discussed include the overall implications of the largest commercial and investment banks in the United States being publicly traded and how financial markets have been transformed as a result.

On February 3, 2022, I was invited by Wolverines for Israel at the University of Michigan to give a lecture about the Mossad from its founding by prime minister David Ben-Gurion to the value of its intelligence gathering leading up to the 1967 Six-Day War and 1973 Yom Kippur War. Other topics discussed include the bureaucratic structure of Israeli intelligence, the relationship between the CIA and Mossad and how it impacts diplomatic relations between the United States and Israel, international assassination campaigns that have targeted those such as Black September following the Munich Massacre and Iranian nuclear scientists, and the capture of Adolf Eichmann from Argentina following the end of WWII and the Holocaust.

On February 2, 2022, I was invited by the Pre-Law Society at UCLA to give a lecture about the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) that focused on the requirements needed to build such criminal cases, along with its impact on organized crime and how some states have adopted their own version of RICO laws.

On December 1, 2021, I was invited by the World Politics Society at American University to give a lecture about China, India, and Pakistan spanning from the Cold War through the 21st century that focused on the Partition of India and creation of Pakistan; Kashmir; Tibet; Xinjiang; China's Belt and Road Initiative and the importance of both the Strait of Malacca and Gwadar Sea Port in Pakistan; "String of Pearls Theory"; China and India competing for influence in Africa; and nuclear weapons.

On November 23, 2021, I was invited by the Stern Political Economy Exchange at NYU to give a lecture about Alan Greenspan's tenure as chairman of the Federal Reserve and how his response to the "Black Monday" in 1987 became known as the "Greenspan Put" and set the precedent for how the Federal Reserve would respond to future financial crises. Other topics discussed include Greenspan's relationship with the Treasury Secretaries of the Clinton Administration, Robert Rubin and Larry Summers and their opposition to the regulation of derivatives and support for the repeal of Glass-Steagall, along with his monetarist view regarding the federal funds rate and money supply.

On November 16, 2021, I was invited by Liberty in North Korea at Indiana University Bloomington to give a lecture about the origins of the Cold War as it pertained to the Korean Peninsula and how events such as the Soviet and American troops being stationed on opposite side of the Korean Peninsula at the end of WWII and Mao Zedong's victory in the Chinese Civil War laid the groundwork for the Korean War. Other topics discussed include North Korea's current relationships with China and Russia, the origins of its nuclear weapons program and the help it received from Abdul Qadeer Khan and Pakistan, and its use of money laundering to skirt around international sanctions.

On November 10, 2021, I was invited by Liberty in North Korea at UCLA to give a lecture about the origins of the Cold War as it pertained to the Korean Peninsula and how events such as the Soviet and American troops being stationed on opposite side of the Korean Peninsula at the end of WWII and Mao Zedong's victory in the Chinese Civil War laid the groundwork for the Korean War. Other topics discussed include North Korea's current relationships with China and Russia, the origins of its nuclear weapons program and the help it received from Abdul Qadeer Khan and Pakistan, and its use of money laundering to skirt around international sanctions.

On November 5, 2021, I was invited by the Eritrean and Ethiopian Student Organization (E2O) at The Ohio State University to give a lecture about the geopolitical significance of Eritrea and Ethiopia for both the Horn of Africa and other regions of the world, such as the Middle East and Europe. Topics discussed include the legacy of Italian imperialism, Cold War politics, the consequences of Ethiopia now being landlocked, the War on Terror and al-Shabaab in Somalia, naval bases being established in Eritrea, Djibouti, and Somalia, and the surge in the number of refugees trying to reach Europe from countries like Eritrea.

On November 4, 2021, I was invited by the Graduate Finance Association at the University of Texas at Austin McCombs School of Business to give a lecture about the rise of Tesla and its path to a trillion dollar valuation beginning with the emergence of Elon Musk from South Africa to Silicon Valley and his journey that led to the formation of Tesla and the launch of its IPO. Other topics discussed include the overall challenge of producing electric cars, the importance of maintaining cash flows, whether or not it can maintain its status both in the auto industry and on Wall Street, and more.

On October 14, 2021, I was invited by the Stock Investment Club at the University of San Francisco to give a lecture about the history of Goldman Sachs and how significant it was for the investment bank to go public in 1999. Other topics discussed include the overall implications of the largest commercial and investment banks in the United States being publicly traded and how financial markets have been transformed as a result.

On September 30, 2021, I presented a lecture on behalf of the Business Department at Marymount Manhattan College about the semiconductor shortage and how it impacts both the global economy and the national security of the United States, while also highlighting the geopolitical importance of Taiwan and companies like the Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company.

On September 30, 2021, I was invited by the Economics Society at NYU to give a lecture about Alan Greenspan's tenure as chairman of the Federal Reserve and how his response to the "Black Monday" in 1987 became known as the "Greenspan Put" and set the precedent for how the Federal Reserve would respond to future financial crises. Other topics discussed include Greenspan's relationship with the Treasury Secretaries of the Clinton Administration, Robert Rubin and Larry Summers and their opposition to the regulation of derivatives and support for the repeal of Glass-Steagall, along with his monetarist view regarding the federal funds rate and money supply.

On September 21, 2021, I was invited by the Princeton Legal Journal at Princeton University to give a lecture about the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) that focused on the requirements needed to build such criminal cases, along with its impact on organized crime and how some states have adopted their own version of RICO laws.

On April 15, 2021, I presented a lecture on behalf of the Sociology Department at Montclair State University titled "A Sociological Perspective on the Amazon Business Model", which discussed the rise and dominance of Amazon, along with its current impact on our society and what we can potentially expect in the future through a series of sociological theories.

On February 19, 2020, I presented a lecture on behalf of the Sociology Department at Montclair State University titled "Somalia and the Horn of Africa: A Sociological Perspective", which discussed the issues plaguing Somalia and other countries in the region such as Ethiopia, Eritrea, and Djibouti, along with using multiple sociological and international development theories to help explain how the region has been often negatively impacted from both internal and external forces.

On February 13, 2020, I was invited by the American Democracy Project at William Paterson University to give a lecture titled "Trump, Putin, and the Arrival of Venezuela in Crisis in the 2020 Election" that discussed the continuation of Cold War politics between the United States and Russia with the focus being on Venezuela, and how Rudy Giuliani and Erik Prince have been conducting shadow diplomacy on behalf of the Trump Administration. Other topics discussed include Russia's very close relationship with the Venezuelan Government under the direction of Vladimir Putin that centers around oil, the Trump Organization's history of accepting money from shell companies with links to people close to both Nicolas Maduro and Hugo Chavez, and the likelihood that this will eventually amount into another scandal worth of another impeachment proceeding against Donald Trump.

On January 7, 2020, I was invited by the Institute of New Dimensions to give a lecture about Erik Prince, the story of Blackwater, his current private security companies around the world, and the geopolitical implications of having private mercenary armies and intelligence services being created by both state and non-state actors.

On November 5, 2019, I was invited by The American Whig-Cliosophic Society at Princeton University to discuss the Mueller Investigation, what to expect going forward with the upcoming release of the grand jury material and Donald Trump's tax returns, why the Department of Justice has a guideline that a sitting President cannot be indicted, and the impeachment inquiry into Donald Trump and the corruption regarding Ukraine with individuals such as Rudy Giuliani and Paul Manafort.

On October 17 and October 24, 2019, I was invited by the Institute of New Dimensions to host a two-week course about the rise of Vladimir Putin and the development of the twenty-first century Russian state following the collapse of the Cold War and the fall of the Soviet Union and what it has meant for the United States and the rest of the world when it comes to geopolitics.

On October 3, 2019, I was invited by the College Democrats at NYU to lecture about the key elements of the Iran Nuclear Deal, the geopolitical implications of the Trump Administration pulling out of the agreement, and some of the potential motives behind the administration withdrawing and re-establishing sanctions against Iran that involve discussing the alliance of the United States and Saudi Arabia, the alliance of the United States and Israel, the alliance of Russia and Iran, the relationship between Jared Kushner and Saudi Crown Prince Mohammad Bin Salman Al Saud, and the relationship between Saudi Crown Prince Mohammad Bin Salman Al Saud and Emirati Crown Prince Mohammed bin Zayed Al Nahyan.

On September 27, October 3, and October 10, 2019, I hosted a three-week course about the Mueller Investigation in which I explain the events in 2017 that led up to the appointment of Robert Mueller as Special Prosecutor, the scope of the investigation as established by the Department of Justice, the legal precedents established for the role of Special Prosecutor, the legal team that worked alongside Robert Mueller, what has been uncovered so far either by Mueller or separate federal investigations about conspiracy between the Trump campaign and Russia, along with any business dealings between the Trump Organization and the Kremlin both before and during the presidential campaign, the quid pro quo scandal involving Trump and Giuliani with Ukraine, and how other organizations like the National Rifle Association, Deutsche Bank, and Qatar Investment Authority have all been investigated.

On June 30, 2019, I was invited by the W.E.B. Du Bois Scholars Institute at Princeton University to lecture about both white nationalism and the Mueller Investigation and how both are very important to understand when it comes to the upcoming 2020 Presidential Election.

On April 30 and May 7, 2019, I was invited to host a two-week course for the Institute of New Dimensions about white nationalism titled "Trump, Nationalism, and the Preservation of a Political Party" where I defined white nationalism and how it is not exactly synonymous with white supremacy, introduced some of the major figures behind the ideology and movements like the Alt-Right, along with an analysis of many members of the Trump Administration, how it influences the Trump Administration and vice versa, particularly on the issues of civil rights, immigration, women's rights, and LGBT rights, and why the Republican Party has decided to pursue this path and type of politics at the federal level and just outright reject the Growth and Opportunity Project that was published following the 2012 Presidential Election.

On March 12 and March 19, 2019, I was invited to host a two-week course for the Institute of New Dimensions on the Mueller Investigation in which I explain the events in 2017 that led up to the appointment of Robert Mueller as Special Prosecutor, the scope of the investigation as established by the Department of Justice, the legal precedents established for the role of Special Prosecutor, the legal team working alongside Robert Mueller, what has been uncovered so far in regards to collusion between the Trump campaign and Russia, along with any business dealings between the Trump Organization and the Kremlin both before and during the presidential campaign, and how other organizations like the National Rifle Association, Deutsche Bank, Qatar Investment Authority, and the Republican Party are now being investigated within the scope of this investigation.

On February 27, 2019, I was invited by the Fairleigh Dickinson University Silberman College of Business to present a lecture to the Investment Club about Brexit in which I discuss the referendum that occurred in 2016 which resulted in the majority of voters in the United Kingdom wanting to leave the European Union, how the European Union was formed and its bureaucratic inner-workings, the important aspects of the European Union such as the free movement of people, the common market, and customs union, how important the European Union is to the global economy, the difference between a hard Brexit and soft Brexit, and why it is so hard to leave the European Union with those efforts being the cause of political turmoil, along with the ripple effects can be felt in the global economy due to events like Brexit.

On February 5, 2019, I was invited by Dr. Norma Bowe at Kean University to present a lecture for her Social Activism course about the Mueller Investigation in which I explain the events in 2017 that led up to the appointment of Robert Mueller as Special Prosecutor, the scope of the investigation as established by the Department of Justice, the legal precedents established for the role of Special Prosecutor, the legal team working alongside Robert Mueller, what has been uncovered so far in regards to collusion between the Trump campaign and Russia, along with any business dealings between the Trump Organization and the Kremlin both before and during the presidential campaign, and how other organizations like the National Rifle Association, Deutsche Bank, Qatar Investment Authority, and the Republican Party are now being investigated within the scope of this investigation.

On February 13, 2018, I was invited by Fairleigh Dickinson University Silberman College of Business to present a lecture to the Investment Club about the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act and discussed the intentions of the bill and politics surrounding its passage, what exactly happened to the economy that led to the crash in 2008 and the fall of companies like Bear Stearns and Lehman Brothers, how the bill responded to the crisis, its strengths and weaknesses, and what a significant rollback or outright repeal would mean as some have called for.

On February 10, 2018, I was invited by Women and Gender Studies Professor Donnalynn Scillieri at Kean University to present a lecture I titled “Trump, Nationalism, and the Preservation of a Political Party” where I defined white nationalism and how it is not exactly synonymous with white supremacy, introduced some of the major figures behind the ideology and movements like the Alt-Right, along with an analysis of many members of the Trump Administration, how it influences the Trump Administration and vice versa, particularly on the issues of civil rights, immigration, women’s rights, and LGBT rights, and why the Republican Party has decided to pursue this path and type of politics at the federal level and just outright reject the Growth and Opportunity Project that was published following the 2012 Presidential Election.

On November 30, 2017, I was invited by the Women and Gender Studies Department at William Paterson University to present a lecture I titled “Trump, Nationalism, and the Preservation of a Political Party” where I defined white nationalism and how it is not exactly synonymous with white supremacy, introduced some of the major figures behind the ideology and movements like the Alt-Right, along with an analysis of many members of the Trump Administration, how it influences the Trump Administration and vice versa, particularly on the issues of civil rights, immigration, women’s rights, and LGBT rights, and why the Republican Party has decided to pursue this path and type of politics at the federal level and just outright reject the Growth and Opportunity Project that was published following the 2012 Presidential Election.

INTERVIEWS:

On July 16, 2020, I was interviewed by the Michael Steele Podcast, which is hosted by former Lieutenant Governor of Maryland and former head of the RNC, Michael Steele, to discuss the political climate of the United States heading into the 2020 Presidential Election, along with how the Covid19 pandemic is impacting higher education.

<https://podcasts.apple.com/sg/podcast/there-will-be-a-quiz-on-tuesday-with-guest-jeremy-levine/id1412905534?i=1000485228379>

On June 30, 2020, I was interviewed by the Counter Intelligence Podcast, which is part of Forensic News LLC, about the bounties placed on U.S. soldiers stationed in Afghanistan by Russian intelligence and how transnational organized crime is impacting politics both in the United States and abroad.

On January 18, 2020, I was interviewed by Counter Intelligence Podcast, which is part of Forensic News LLC, about the impeachment proceedings and what to expect during the Senate trial, the evidence provided by Lev Parnas to the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, and the conduct of both William Barr and the Southern District of New York.

On November 23, 2019, I was interviewed by Counter Intelligence Podcast, which is part of Forensic News LLC, about the impeachment proceedings and the history of Trump being connected to organized crime, along with Rudy Giuliani and the latest revelations of Congressman Devin Nunes traveling overseas attempting to find corruption associated with the FBI and CIA regarding the origins of the Mueller Investigation and the FISA warrants tied to Carter Page.

On November 5, 2019, following the lecture I was invited to give by The American Whig-Closophic Society at Princeton University, I was interviewed by The Daily Princetonian about the Mueller Investigation, impeachment proceedings and the topic of Ukraine, and the relationship between Jared Kushner and Saudi Crown Prince Mohammad Bin Salman Al Saud.

<https://www.dailyprincetonian.com/article/2019/11/levine-mueller-q-a>

On October 30, 2019, I was interviewed by a writer for the NYU Journal of Politics & International Affairs on the subject of the Mueller Investigation and answered a series of questions about the origins of the investigation, the constitutionality of the appointment of Robert Mueller, how the media has covered the investigation and release of the redacted report, the difference between collusion and conspiracy, if a sitting President can be indicted, does Congress have the right to see the grand jury information, and how the investigation can potentially impact the impeachment proceedings.

<https://www.jpianyu.org/archive/2019/12/12/understanding-the-mueller-investigation-with-professor-jeremy-levine>

On October 30, 2019, I was interviewed by a writer for the NYU Undergraduate Law Review on the subject of impeachment and the inquiry launched by the House of Representatives against President Donald Trump and answered a series of questions about previous impeachment proceedings, the parallels between this inquiry and the one against Richard Nixon following Watergate, the executive privilege and absolute immunity claims made by the Trump Administration, the consequences for defying subpoenas, and the impeachment procedures being followed by Adam Schiff that were designed by former Speaker of the House John Boehner.

UPCOMING EVENTS: